Download

On the "Select what to recover" screen, select the type of data, i.e. something that can be restored in case of lack of information. Click the OK button and you can get back to work. \t At the end of the window, in the list on the navigation bar on the left, select "Unit Configuration". Now that the device is set up and you can manage it, let's move on to setting up interaction with the computer. Program launch \t Depending on the settings you have made while working with the device, several applications can be launched in the "Launch" window. Using the End Session button, you can end the session of the device or its operation in a "hung" state. After Windows activates the device, it will boot up. Information about it will be displayed in the window that opens. The upper part of the window shows the manufacturer, device type, and key parameters; the lower part shows the current device settings. Click "OK", and now you can install or remove programs and data, as well as perform other actions related to your device. Further actions with the device can be carried out in the following windows: Hardware window Right-click on the device, then select "Properties". Additional settings will appear on the "Workspace" tab: Security tab - Safely Remove Hardware. During removal, the device can be erased without losing any data while using the removed device. The "Delete Device" and "Disable Device Management" buttons can be used to restore. The "Firmware" and "Memory" tabs allow you to choose which device memory you want to save for later recovery. If the memory is not used, it will be deleted, which can lead to data corruption on the device. In addition, on the "Programs" tab, you can format the
