Netflix Prize -- A contest in which individuals compete to find a computer program.This is a proposal to study the rat brain M2 protein (M2P) gene. M2P is a member of a small group of evolutionarily conserved genes that encode proteins containing functional zinc fingers. These proteins are abundant in metazoans and are normally located in the cell nucleus. They participate in a wide variety of functions, including formation of the transcriptional silencing structure called pericentromeric heterochromatin, nuclear export of RNA and possibly formation of cytoplasmic RNA granules. The sequence analysis of the rat M2P gene is almost completed and we are in the process of completing the 5' flank region of the gene and are analyzing its structure. We will continue to clone and analyze the gene, assess its expression in rat tissues, and analyze its
